

The Internet

Can you hear it?
I bet u can't.
Millions of people, all in the same place.
Talking, sharing, laughing;
But really everyone is alone.
Another world, a thing to see, but a world is never perfect.
We all know the risks,
When you pick up that phone.
When you open the lid,
When you gear up with headphones.
Your controller in hand
You are ready for battle. The battle with no land.

With a single touch
You're on a quest,
Scrolling through other people's lives
But you have no time to wave goodbyes.
You're too busy
We understand.
But the internet is no man's land.
Dangers lurk behind those screens
Posts of all kind, but mainly teens.

But you know the risks.
You have the controller.
You can put it down,
Close the door to the digital town.
You know the rules,
You own the tools.
But remember anyone can be fooled.

By Gabrielle, aged 12